GOOD PROSPECTS FOR CONVENTION

Many Expressions Favorable to Gettysburg Made by Officials of Church of the Brethren Regarding Next Year's Meeting.

Everything points to a successful outcome to Gettysburg's campaign for the big national convention of the Church of the Brethren in May 1912. Officials high in church circles are enthusiastic over the proposition of bringing the big meeting here and the sentiment for Gettysburg is growing as the news spreads that the town will place an invitation before the locating committee which will be appointed August 16.

A letter received this morning by Bishop Hollinger of this place from one who is closely connected with the government of the church says among other things "Work for Gettysburg for 1912. It will bring five thousand more of our people to the annual meeting if it is held there." It has been generally known the annual meetings are usually attended by from 20,000 to 40,000 people.

"The Gospel Messenger," the official organ of the Church of the Brethren says, "It would appear that York is not the only place in Southern Pennsylvania that is working for the annual meeting of 1912. It is reported that the noted and historic Gettysburg is a strong bidder for the conference. It would be remarkable, indeed, if the conference of a people, who have always stood for peace, should be held on one of the most famous battlefields of the world." This editorial expression of approval is also received with gratification by local people.

The meeting, if secured, really means a month of heavy tourist trade. The tickets are sold good for thirty days and all people buying the tickets must come here to turn in their tickets and later get them again for the return home. As a number will likely hesitate about staying during the big rush of the conference proper it is believed that they will leave until after the sessions and return during the latter part of the thirty day period. The benefit to hotels and boarding houses as well as to all other forms of business activity can readily be seen.

The big event is declared to be practically assured to the town provided the expenses necessary to give the people a meeting place and other incidentals are met by the town. York, a strong bidder for the meeting, is laboring under a heavy handicap, that of not having any site to offer except the fair grounds while the Church of the Brethren is on record as being opposed to holding an annual meeting at such a place.

The expense necessary to be met here is estimated at about $3000. On the success of raising this amount prior to the appointment of the locating committee on August 16, when all invitations must be presented and claims pressed, depends Gettysburg's chance of securing the annual meeting.

FOOLS AGENT, ROBS OFFICE

The White Hill station of the Philadelphia and Reading was robbed by an unknown man early Saturday morning. R. B. Hummel, the agent, was notified by man who came into the station to get a drink of water, that the signal light had gone out. The man went out, and Hummel investigated the light. He returned, and after spending some time at his desk noticed that the shade on one of the windows had been drawn. He knew that he did not do it himself, and made an investigation about the office. He found that $18 had been taken from the money drawer.

TOWN SCHOOL BOARD LOSES

Cumberland Township School Board Wins Case Brought by Local Board. Will be Carried to Superior Court.

Judge Swope has handed down an opinion sustaining the Cumberland township school board in its contention with the Gettysburg school board regarding tuition for pupils from the township who attended Gettysburg schools in 1908 and 1909.

Under the Act of Assembly the Gettysburg school board admitted a number of pupils who lived more than a mile and a half from any township school house, and was paid by the township the amount provided for a seven months' term. This is the length of the school year in Cumberland township while in Gettysburg it is two months longer.

The local school board claims the balance for the extra length in term. The amount directly involved is only $30.00 but the principle if carried out in future years will amount to quite a sum as every year pupils from Cumberland township attend the Gettysburg schools.

Donald P. McPherson, Esq., represents the Gettysburg board in the case and J. L. Butt, Esq., the Cumberland township board. They stated the case to the Court who ruled that the township need pay only for the length of time their own schools are open.

The Gettysburg school board will carry the case to the Superior Court.

Swartz; treasurer, George Dutta; home department superintendent, William Smucker; teacher training superintendent, Calvin Rudisill; Adult Bible Class superintendent, J. M. Strevig. The man had his right arm badly cut and was lacerated all over the body. His son, Allen, who was standing nearby, was knocked down and stunned by the blast. The injured men were picked up by fellow workmen and taken to the Harrisburg hospital where they were given treatment. Mr. Anderson will lose at least two of his fingers.

A game of base ball has been scheduled between Gettysburg Y. M. C. A. and Hanover for Thursday afternoon on Nixon Field. LOCAL SIGNS FOR THE STATE ROADS

Government Metal Sign Posts on Streets of Gettysburg Approved by State Highway Commissioner for State Roads.

Sign posts at the intersections of all state roads, similar to the posts erected by the National Park Commission at the side of a number of roads entering Gettysburg, are now contemplated by State Highway Commissioner Bigelow who was much impressed with the design of the local posts at the time of his hurried visit here last week.

"The State of Pennsylvania needs sign posts to tell people where to go almost as much as it needs better roads," said Mr. Bigelow at the conclusion of one of his inspection trips over state roads. "And I'm going to get them," he added.

"In many places where there are forks of roads there is not even a stock to tell one where to go," said he. "Some posts I find but no boards and on boards which were in existence the rains had long ago washed off the names. I have been put to considerable inconvenience myself and feel for the traveling public, which has evidently suffered a great deal."

The commissioner's idea is to get metal signs. He was very much impressed with the metal guide posts here and during the week one of the men connected with the department was sent to get into touch with the National Park Commission, so that the design could be looked over.

Mr. Bigelow plans to have a uniform guide post of metal and to have the lettering and figures put on as needed, the plan of fusing on the letters being regarded as feasible. Such posts would be indestructible and meet one of the greatest difficulties regarding state roads.

Mr. Bigelow has had the survey preliminary to taking over the road to Gettysburg started and will lose no time in starting on the repairs to the old Cumberland, or Southern, road. This will be improved between Pittsburg and Bedford through the $300,000 appropriation.

The commissioner is severe in his criticisms of the manner in which local authorities in many counties have allowed state roads to go to pieces.

ASSISTANT TO WILEY DISMISSED

Is Star Witness in Benzoate of Soda Case.

FRESH WORK FOR PROBERS

Floyd Robinson, a Chemist, Is Let Out of the Service—No Charges Against Him.

Washington, July 18.—A new and startling development, having a direct bearing on the efforts to oust Dr. Harvey W. Wiley from the department of agriculture, came to light in the disclosure that one of the foremost chemists of Dr. Wiley's staff, Floyd W. Robinson, has been let out of the service.

The significance of this can best be understood when it is stated that Robinson is the star witness against benzoate of soda in the suit now pending in the federal courts at Indianapolis, a suit that was brought by the food commissioners of the state of Indiana, and which may result in a death blow being struck at the business of using benzoate of soda as a food preservative.

Robinson is from Detroit, and recently has been employed in the pure food and drug laboratory of the government at New York. So far as can be learned, no charges have been made against him, but he has been notified that he has been "dismissed for the good of the service." A notification to this effect has been sent to him by Secretary Wilson. No notice of charges has been given him. He has demanded that he be apprised of charges against him if any exist.

So far the department of agriculture is silent on the matter. Officials there refused to make any statement about Robinson's dismissal.

The circumstances of the ousting of Robinson are such that this matter will undoubtedly be looked into by the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture.

Unless it can be shown by the department that there are substantial reasons for the ousting of Robinson other than appear on the surface, the case will present the appearance of being a part and parcel of the movement by an element in the department of agriculture, the anti-Wiley element, to get rid of the Wiley influence.

The Robinson case makes it seem likely that the anti-Wiley movement in the department does not stop at Wiley, but it intended to reach to the men that hold the same views he does of the enforcement of the pure food and drug act.

Robinson was formerly state analyst of the Michigan dairy and food department. Several years ago he was appointed chief food and drug inspection chemist of the bureau of chemistry. He was appointed after he had passed a civil service examination and had been put on the civil service rolls. After he was regularly employed by the bureau of chemistry he was sent to the laboratory at New York, where he was one of the chief analysts. He was paid on a per diem basis.

Late in June he was compelled to go to Detroit to look after certain matters of a private nature. He terminated his connection with the department, but he expected to be employed to do certain work of the department and be paid on a per diem basis for such services as he might perform.

Soon after getting back to Detroit, however, he was notified by Secretary Wilson that he was "dismissed for the good of the service." Inasmuch, according to his representations, as he had done the department excellent service, he did not understand why he should be let out in a way that was calculated to injure his standing. Nor has he yet been apprised of why he was dropped in the manner he was.

DROWNS ESCAPING MOB

Unidentified Man Had Shot Woman and Her Daughter.

Washington, Pa., July 18.—Trying to save himself from lynching by a mob, which pursued him after he had shot two women at Black Diamond, near here, an unidentified foreigner, with only one leg, threw himself into the Monongahela river, where he was drowned.

When refused food by Mrs. William Fleming the man shot her through the cheek and her daughter, Mary, in the right arm. He then fled from the mob, which overtook him as he reached the river bank.

The cries of "lynch him!" and the sight of a long rope so terrified the fellow that he plunged to his death in the water. His body was recovered immediately and badly cut by the mob, which dragged it for several miles along the road.

Lights Match to Find Gas Leak.

New York, July 18.—Fifteen persons, ten of them firemen, were thrown down and injured in a second explosion of gas in the silverware plant of E. G. Webster, on Atlantic avenue, in Brooklyn. The first explosion of gas in the cellar brought out the fire department, and while a search was being made for the leak an employee tried to expedite the hunt by lighting a match. The building was shaken by the explosion and the injured were hurried to hospitals.

QUESTIONS FOR CANDIDATES

Bryan Would Put Aspirants For Presidency on Record.

Omaha, July 18.—Every aspirant for the presidency is going on record on all the great questions of the day, if William J. Bryan can force him to do so.

Bryan has propounded thirteen questions which he wants all candidates for the Democratic nomination to answer, and for fear that some of the "dodgers" will fail to do so, Mr. Bryan will ask the Democratic press of the United States to assist him in arousing public sentiment to such a point that the candidates will be forced to state their positions upon these questions.

The questions are these:

"Do you favor a tariff for revenue only?"

"Do you favor free raw material and the placing of a revenue duty on only manufactured goods?"

"Do you believe that, in the revision of the tariff, the element of protection should be given consideration?"

"Do you believe the three branches of the government are co-ordinate—that each should keep within its constitutional sphere?"

"Do you approve of the recent Standard Oil decision wherein the supreme court 'legislated' the word 'unreasonable' into the Sherman anti-trust law?"

"Do you favor the repeal of the criminal clause of the anti-trust law or believe congress should make it clear that all restraint of trade is unreasonable?"

"Do you favor popular election of senators?"

"Do you favor the income tax?"

"Do you believe it is the duty of the American people to promise independence to the Philippine Islands immediately and give it to them in the same way it was given to the Cubans?"

"Do you believe in publicity of campaign contributions?"

"Are you willing that the source of every dollar of the campaign fund, either before or after nomination, shall be made public?"

"Do you favor support of state government in all their rights?"

"Do you indorse the labor planks of 1908, strict regulation of railroads, the Aldrich currency scheme, asset currency in any form, establishment of a central bank and a law compelling banks to insure depositors?"

LABOR MEN WANT CHARGES SET ASIDE

Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison Resist Contempt Order.

Washington, July 18.—Attacking the jurisdiction of the court and the legality of the proceeding, President Samuel Gompers, Vice President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, appeared in the supreme court of the District of Columbia to resist the latest contempt order issued against them by Justice Wright.

The defendants moved to dismiss on the ground that the report of the committee of lawyers submitted to the court in the case was not a proper one, in that the members of the committee did not and could not exercise the judicial qualities required in the order.

This motion was overruled, the court holding that the members of the committee were prosecutors and not called upon to exercise judicial functions. In ruling, the court remarked that even had the committee reported that there were no reasonable grounds for contempt charges such a report would not have been received.

Gompers' attorneys at once protested that in view of this expression by the court they should not be compelled to proceed, but that Justice Wright should certify the case to some other justice for trial. Justice Wright curtly dismissed the protest with "You may proceed."

Should the court hold that the answer raises a question of fact, the case will go over until October, when all the members of the district supreme court probably will sit with Justice Wright as advisers.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday without action.

"Gentleman Burglar" Must Go Home.

New York, July 18.—Carl Von Metz-Meyer, a former army officer in Norway, where his father is rated a rich man, will not have to serve time for his robberies in Brooklyn. Judge Dike gave the choice of five years in Sing Sing or immediate departure for his home in Norway. Metz-Meyer, who has been called the "gentleman burglar," was delighted to go home. Judge Dike said it was better to have Metz-Meyer out of the country than have the people paying for his keep in prison.

Sold Gold Mine For $8,000,000.

Calgary, Alberta, July 18.—Pat Burns, the Calgary meat packer, has sold his "First Thought" gold mine to an English syndicate for $8,000,000. It was one of the first mines opened in the last year at the Orient camp on the Pacific coast.

Camper Drowns While Swimming. Hazleton, Pa., July 18.—George Kereske, eighteen years of age, a member of a camping party, was drowned while swimming in Ice lake. The body has not been found.

NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE

Amendments Provide For Publicity Before and After Elections In Primary and General Elections, and Applies to Senators and Congressmen.

Washington, July 18.—The senate amended and passed the bill providing for publicity of contributions to and expenditures in political campaigns. The vote was 50 to 7. The negative votes were all cast by Democrats from the south.

The bill in its amended form provides for publicity, not only before and after elections, but in the case of primary as well as general elections. It applies both to candidates for the United States senate and nominees for the house of representatives. The bill has been passed by the house and will now go to conference. The present publicity law provides only for a statement of expenditures after elections and does not apply to candidates for the senate.

The house bill was finally amended by the senate. One of the amendments adopted extends the law to cover the full publicity contributions and expenses at primary elections as well as general elections and for publicity before and after elections.

An amendment offered by Senator Reed, of Missouri, aroused much interest. It seeks to put a limitation on the amount of money that every candidate for senator or representative may expend and in other ways broadens the scope of the bill. The Reed amendment enacts that the total amount of money expended by any candidate to influence an election shall not exceed ten cents for each voter, and that he shall not be permitted to expend a sum in excess of what is lawfully allowed by the legislature of the state in which he is a candidate; that a candidate for United States senator shall not contribute any money in aid of the election of a member of the legislature of his own state, and that in no event shall a candidate for the United States senate expend more than $10,000 or a candidate for the house of representatives more than $5,000 to influence his election.

The bill as it left the senate and will go to conference of the two houses requires publicity by the treasurer of every political committee not more than fifteen and not less than ten days before an election at which representatives in congress are to be elected in two or more states. A full statement of each contribution and the name and address of the person, firm, association or committee contributing. This publication is to be made by filing a statement made under oath with the clerk of the house of representatives at Washington.

WOMAN'S SENSE OF JUSTICE

Reimburses Husband's Clients For Losses Sustained By His Advice.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 18.—When the will of Mrs. Mary H. L. Thomson was admitted to probate here there was revealed a remarkable illustration of an overkeen sense of justice.

She bequeathed $1000 each to Mrs. Ann Cady, of Amsterdam, and Mrs. Daniel Allen, of Schenectady, to replace losses sustained by these women in 1884 through investments advised by the husband of the deceased, who was the counsel for a foundry concern which failed.

It was learned that although the Thomson fortune was nearly wiped out by that failure, Mrs. Thomson has since, out of her own means, slowly repaid all of her husband's clients except the two mentioned in her will.

SLAY HERMIT; BURN HOME

Murder, Arson and Robbery Committed at Isolated Home.

Vine Grove, Ky., July 18.—Murder, arson and robbery are believed to have been committed at the home of David Patterson, a wealthy hermit, whose body was found in the smoking ruins. He is supposed to have kept large sums of money in that isolated house.

Rushing to the burning building, neighbors found the body of the hermit in his bed. A rifle nearby, with a fired cartridge in it, led first to the suicide theory, but it was later ascertained that the man's skull had been crushed.

Operated in Mid-Ocean.

London, July 18.—Surgeon McMaster, of the White Star steamship Celtic, aided by Dr. Roberts, of New York, and Dr. Rininger, of Seattle, performed operations for appendicitis on two men passengers while the Celtic was in mid-ocean. The ship was slowed down while the surgeons were at work.

Trenton, N. J., July 18.—Isaiah Walton, aged thirty-seven years, and an engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, was killed in a collision between his engine and a caboose in the Waverly yard.

Attorney For Investigating Committee In Lorimer Case.

LORIMER PROBERS DIG INTO "JACKPOT"

Witness Tells of Talk With Alleged Contributor.

Washington, July 18.—The $100,000 legislative "jackpot" about which revolves charges affecting the election of Senator Lorimer, figured in the testimony at the opening of the hearing before the senate Lorimer committee.

William Burgess, manager and treasurer of an electrical company at Duluth, Minn., testified before the Helm investigating committee of the Illinois senate that on a train running out of Duluth about March, 1911, C. F. Wiehe, who is associated in business with Edward Hines, declared to him that "there was a jackpot raised to elect Mr. Lorimer; I know what I am talking about, because I subscribed $10,000 to it myself."

Mr. Burgess testified about this conversation.

Mr. Burgess said that he and Wiehe had not met before that day. They began conversing in the smoking car. Burgess said he had a remark about the Lorimer election, which finally led the stranger, who, he said, was Wiehe, to remark that Burgess "did not know very much about it."

Shortly afterward, according to the witness, Wiehe said: "There was a jackpot for Lorimer's election. I know what I am talking about, because I subscribed $10,000 to it myself."

But after Senator Jones had asked why he did not tell that to the Helm committee, and suggested that he might have gotten the idea from the newspapers subsequently, Burgess told the committee he was not certain as to whether Wiehe had said a "jackpot" had been raised to elect Lorimer or whether $100,000 had been raised.

An affidavit made by Burgess on April 17 last was produced. It declared that during the train conversation Wiehe said a detective employed by the Chicago editor, Kohlsaat, had confessed to Father Green that he was employed to get "trumped up" charges against Lorimer.

Mr. Hines asked why the witness did not mention "trumped up" charges in his direct examination. "I don't know," responded the witness. "I cannot say whether he used these words or not, but that was the substance of it."

Automobile Dynamited.

Jasonville, Ind., July 18.—An automobile belonging to Hawkins & Wambaugh, of Coalmont, two miles northwest of here, was blown up with a charge of dynamite. Bloodhounds were placed on the trail of the dynamiters, but no trace of them has been found. The charge was placed in the seat and the fuse was run out of the front part. The machine was demolished. A bitter liquor fight is on between the "wets" and "drys" at Coalmont, and Hawkins & Wambaugh are leaders for the "wets."

Six Killed by Explosion.

Denver, Colo., July 18.—Six men were killed and several injured by an explosion in the nitro-glycerine house of the Dupont powder factory, about fifteen miles south of Denver.

THE HARVEST MOON
A Novelization of the Drama
AUGUSTUS THOMAS
By GEORGE HENRY PAYNE
Copyright, 1900, by Augustus Thomas

SYNOPSIS.
Dora Fullerton decides to go on the stage. She breaks her engagement with Graham Winthrop and meets Willard Holcomb, an actor. Her family opposes her ambition.
Holcomb is respectful and friendly. Dora sees life behind the scenes and makes her first appearance in a small town. Graham Winthrop meets M. Vavin, a noted French playwright and lecturer.
Vavin knows Dora and her father, Professor Fullerton. He is on his way to America. The company Dora joins is a failure.
Professor Fullerton and Dora's Aunt Cornelia are much pleased by this. Holcomb's first play is accepted. He wants Dora to play the leading role.
Holcomb visits Dora at Lenox. Aunt Cornelia, who is a shrew, tells Dora she has low instincts like her mother, who also had stage aspirations.
Legal proceedings to restrain Dora from going on the stage are talked of. Holcomb proposes to her, and she accepts him.
Dora tells M. Vavin of this, and Holcomb announces the engagement to Professor Fullerton, who is angry. Vavin encourages Dora.
Fullerton feels Vavin Dora is not his daughter. Vavin shows emotion. He advises Dora to go on the stage. Holcomb scolds Dora and Ludlow, leading man, about their action. Dora is incensed.
The says she won't appear in Holcomb's play. Vavin learns that Ludlow has gained influence over Dora. Vavin champions the girl's cause against Fullerton and Aunt Cornelia.

CHAPTER XIII.

It was a happy Dora that entered Mrs. Winthrop's after leaving Holcomb, a more contented girl than she had been in years.
"You look radiant, my dear," said Mrs. Winthrop. "Did M. Vavin see you home?"
"No," replied the girl. "Mr. Holcomb came home with me. M. Vavin has some business to attend to."
"It was a put up job," snapped her Aunt Cornelia.
"If that was the case," answered Dora, "it was very well put up, for M. Vavin has shown Mr. Holcomb the most wonderful things about playwriting and is going to help him rehearse the play tomorrow."
"I am not interested in Mr. Holcomb or his old play," said Dora.
"Then, Aunt Cornelia," said Dora, "you may be interested in the knowledge that Mr. Holcomb and I are to be married on the 20th."
Graham Winthrop was lighting a cigarette as the girl made this announcement. He blinked once or twice and then walked up to her, and, although, as he said afterward, it wasn't the pleasantest moment in his life, he held out his hand.
"I congratulate you, Dora, or, rather, I congratulate him. He's a lucky chap. But what an idiot I was to have introduced him to you!"
"You're not serious about this, are you, Dora?" asked the elder Miss Fullerton, who hadn't moved from the moment the announcement was made.
"I am," was the reply, "and if you will pardon me now I am going to get some sleep, as tomorrow is really a new day, and I want to be in good shape for the rehearsal." And as no one seemed to have anything more to say she hid them good night and went to her room.
The elder Miss Fullerton, who had followed her, began angrily and hurriedly:
"I have been very patient with you, Dora Fullerton. I have tried reprimand and persuasion when you have undertaken these foolish and disgraceful projects. But I have let this affair go far enough. You are not going to marry that low down actor!"
"Mr. Holcomb," said Dora calmly, "is not a low down actor, and I am going to marry him."
"You are going to drag the name of Fullerton into the gutter!"
"You ought to be the last one in the world to say that, Aunt Cornelia," said the girl cheerfully, "inasmuch as I am going to change it. I am as proud of the name of Fullerton as you are, as proud of my father as you are. And I shall be equally proud of the name of Holcomb and equally proud of my husband."
Aunt Cornelia stood up and glared at her. Had she been a man her emotions would have found relief in profanity. As it was, she simply stammered with rage and then said slowly, vindictively:
"It serves us right. I opposed my brother's marriage to your mother. I opposed his taking you in—you who were not his child, you who came to us without a name and have been nothing but a scum up to now—when you are a disgrace!"
The girl looked at her blankly. She had never had any love for this relative, but had been brought up to respect her and her motives, and, though there were times when the reign was bitter and cruel, Aunt Cornelia's right to dominate her had always been a serious matter with her. She had never seen her so passionately angry before. Although she knew vaguely that something horrible was being told her, she could only feel that it was the result of an ungovernable temper.

"You mustn't say things like that," she exclaimed when she had recovered from her amazement. "My father will never forgive you."
"Your father?" sneered Aunt Cornelia. "No one knows who your father was. Your mother was my brother's wife, but she ran away from him and got a divorce, and two years after she got her divorce you were born in Paris."
"You know you are lying, Aunt Cornelia."
"Why should I lie to you, you fool? Wouldn't I be found out in the morning? Wouldn't my brother tell the truth to you?"
"He would," sobbed the girl, now utterly helpless, "and he will."
"Oh, perhaps he'll try to gloss it over," pursued the charitable spinster. "Perhaps he'll try to make it easy for you, as he has done all these years—supporting you, worrying about you, educating you, you ingrate!"
The girl sat up on the bed upon which she had thrown herself.
"I think," she said, pulling herself together, "that there is no need of our continuing this conversation. If what you say is true—and, God help me, I believe it is, for even you couldn't invent a lie like that—there is no need of our remaining in the same room longer than is necessary. I want to be alone. Please go to your own room."
"And now you can marry your actor if you like," was the parting shot as Dora held the door open for her.
For three hours the girl sat with her hands clasped over her knees, staring about the room. The first flood of tears that had come when she felt that what Cornelia Fullerton had told her was true she now regretted.

There was nothing to weep over, she argued to herself. Her emotions were not of the kind that could find comfort in so usual, so childish a way. Had Vavin seen her then he would have said indeed that she had a Napoleonic courage, the strong jaw and the clear eye. On this of all nights, when she had been most happy, when the world was opening up to her new realm of content and freedom—on this night she had to learn that the mother whom she had grown to love through the off-deeried faults had borne her in disgrace—that she was an outcast without even a name. That was surely too remarkable a thing to be let down with tears.
She must first see her father—her father! She threw back her head and sighed. Her father! Who was this man who had disgraced her mother? She would like to see him.
But first she must see Professor Fullerton. She must have him tell her if this was true. And then—what then? The idea of suicide came to her, and the girl gripped her teeth and dismissed it almost as the suggestion arose. But Holcomb—No; she wouldn't marry him. He was too fine—too good. It wouldn't make any difference to him—that, of course she knew—but it would make a difference to her. It would make a difference to her children, if she had children, and there came a little gulp in her throat, and she almost gave way to tears that might have been a better outlet than this fierce cogitation.
If Fullerton told her it was true she would go away from New York. She would go somewhere out west—join some stock company.
No; that wouldn't do. It was the theater that had ruined her mother. Oh, the merciless truth of it! Aunt Cornelia had been right all the time. She would take up some other business and earn her living. She would make money enough to pay back Professor Fullerton for her education. She started planning immediately. What business could she get in? Two or three of her companions at college were writing for magazines and newspapers. She would do that. She would do anything. She would show them that if her mother had made a mistake her mother's daughter would vindicate them both.
It was dawn before she knew it.

It was Graham who first remarked that Dora was sleeping unusually late, as she had always been punctual at breakfast.
"Miss Fullerton," answered the waiting maid, "has not been in her room since I got up."
"Not in her room," repeated Mrs. Winthrop, and she rose hurriedly from the breakfast table and entered Dora's room. The bed was undisturbed and most of her small belongings had evidently been removed in a traveling case. On the dresser was a note addressed to her hostess:
Dear Mrs. Winthrop—A million thanks for all your kindness. Forgive me. Good-bye.
DORA.
"What can it mean?" she exclaimed as she laid the note before Cornelia and her son.
"Just another one of her pranks," was the kindly suggestion of her supposed relative.
"It can't be that she has"—began young Winthrop, who still loved the girl and who would rather have faced the prospect of never seeing her again than to know that she had done anything to hurt herself or her reputation.
"I am going to wire my brother," said Miss Fullerton.
"Before you do that," suggested Graham, his mind working slowly, but sanely, "I think it would be a good thing to telephone Judge Elliott and let him go after Vavin and Holcomb, as I believe the latter will probably know something."
Elliott listened to what by this time had become a more extended narrative of Dora's disappearance. The night elevator man had been found, and he had said that he had taken Miss Fullerton down in the elevator at 6 o'clock and had called a cab for her. She had told the cabman to take her to the Forty-second street station and had tipped him, the elevator man, a dollar. He was perfectly ready to testify that she seemed thoroughly sane.
"I think," said Elliott, "that we had better talk to Vavin first, as it was at his hotel that she had supper last night." The legal mind is really remarkably sharp.

"I don't know whether Vavin is fooling us or not," said Elliott when he came back from the telephone, "but he seemed as much put out about this as we are. I don't understand that old jigger anyway. He has all the manners of a Frenchman, and, although he has written some d—d bad plays, he seems to have the sound morals of an American."
"That isn't as great a compliment as you think it is," snapped Aunt Cornelia, who had not been having a very pleasant morning.
"The thing that I don't really care so much about," said Elliott, "is the fact that he asked me to let him call up Holcomb. He said that both of them would be up here as soon as possible."
"I suppose," interjected Winthrop, "that I can blame myself a whole lot for introducing Dora to that fellow."
They were still discussing the mystery and the possible calamity when Vavin and Holcomb arrived.

SIX DEAD IN CHOLERA CRISIS
Fourteen Others Ill With Plague in New York.
SEVERAL MORE MAY DIE

Quarantine Officers Say No New Cases Have Been Discovered and Conditions Are Satisfactory.
New York, July 18. — Two more deaths from cholera have occurred at the Swinburne Island hospital.
A boy immigrant, fourteen years old, and Erzebet Szabolcsi, a woman, twenty-five years old, succumbed to the disease.
The total of deaths among the quarantined steerage passengers who arrived on the steamship Moltke twelve days ago is now six, and there are fourteen cases diagnosed as cholera. Some of those now suffering from the plague are seriously ill, and the death list may be swollen within the next few days.
The quarantine officers said that conditions at Hoffman Island were satisfactory. The steamer Perugia, from the Mediterranean, is still at anchor in quarantine, while her passengers are under observation. No cases of cholera were found among the 261 passengers and ninety-one members of the crew of the Perugia. All persons aboard, however, remain under close observation. The ship is being disinfected.
The seriousness of the cholera situation in Mediterranean countries has not been appreciated by the general public. Italy has been the principal source of the disease, although it has also developed in Egypt and Greece, and there is danger of its spreading into Austria.
The Italian government has been very frank about the matter in its official relations with the United States, but the Italian newspapers are silent, and the sanitary and anti-cholera precautions are agitating the populace, especially at Naples. They say that the regulations are causing foreign ships to avoid the port, entailing loss to nearly all classes, especially the boatmen. There is talk of a general strike.
It is a matter of general knowledge in Italy that cholera has appeared in Venice as well as in Naples and in Palermo. Messina is said to be free from the disease. Even in Tuscany, generally free from such epidemics, a number of deaths have happened.

P. & R. MUST DIVORCE COAL
Government Files Suit to Disassociate Railway and Coal Companies.
Philadelphia, July 18.—Suits were filed against the Philadelphia & Reading Railway company in the federal court in this city by the government, seeking a bona fide disassociation of the Reading Railway company from the Reading Coal company.
The action parallels a recent one against the Lehigh Valley, and is the government's second move in its new fight to separate the coal carrying railroads from their virtual control of the coal business.
Recognizing for a long time that there is much truth in the general charge that coal prices are fixed in the Reading Terminal offices, and that the only solution is to divorce the coal mining business entirely from the coal transportation business, the government has decided to make a second attempt to wrest the alleged price-making powers from the offices in the Reading Terminal by bringing about a complete separation of the coal mining business from the coal carrying business, now carried on by the Reading system.
The government's suit takes the form of an amended complaint to the original commodities clause action of 1908, which is in conformance with the commodities clause decision of the supreme court.

11 BOLTS STRIKE ONE PLACE
Remarkable Freak of Lightning During Storm in Chester County.
West Chester, Pa., July 18.—A remarkable freak of lightning is reported from Cain Meeting, Cain township, where eleven bolts struck within a space of two acres in a piece of woodland, shattering as many trees and burning the leaves from a large number of others close by.
One bolt followed a wire fence and destroyed posts on its way to the ground in addition to killing trees and shrubbery. Many visitors are visiting the scene.

Eleven Dead in Railroad Wreck.
Berlin, July 18. — Eleven persons were killed and twenty were seriously injured when an express train running between Basle and Frankfurt was derailed while it was entering the station at Mulheim. The train was completely wrecked. A defective brake is said to have caused the accident.

Troops to Remain on Border.
Washington, July 18.—As the result of an unfavorable report to the state department on conditions in Mexico close to the Arizona border, the war department ordered the four troops of cavalry at Nogales to remain there until the situation clears.

Now Near Unionville, Ind.; Has Progressed 31 Miles.
Washington, July 18.—The center of population of the United States is four and one-quarter miles south of Unionville, Monroe county, Indiana, according to a census bureau announcement.
Since 1900, when it was six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind., it has moved thirty-one miles westward and seven-tenths of a mile northward. The westward movement was more than twice that of the 1890-1900 decade. This acceleration of the westward movement is attributed by census officials principally to the growth of the Pacific and southwestern states.
The geographical center of the United States is in northern Kansas, so that the center of population, therefore, is about 550 miles east of the geographical center of the country.

MINERS WANT NEW PACT
Demands Not Expected to Be Formulated Until October Convention.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 18.—The annual convention of District No. 1, of United Mine Workers of America, met here. About 150 delegates are in attendance.
The president, McEnaney, presided. The latter will be succeeded in office by John Dempsey, who has filled the office of secretary-treasurer of the organization for several terms.
The sentiment of the delegates appears to be that when the agreement with the coal operators expires next April there should be a new agreement which will shorten the hours of labor and increase wages. It is believed, however, that no official action will be taken on this until the meeting of the tri-district convention in October, when the entire anthracite region will be represented and the demands of the miners will be formulated.
Chicagoans Able to See Across Lake.
Chicago, July 18.—Because of the clear atmosphere residents of Chicago had a rare treat in gazing over Lake Michigan. The white shore line and tree forms near Michigan City, Ind., were visible from several of the city's skyscrapers. Steamers forty miles off shore could plainly be seen. Mirages of the shore near St. Joseph and other Michigan points were also visible.

"Consecrates" Babies in Quick Time.
Chicago, July 18.—After kissing 282 babies and consecrating them to the "Cause of Zion," Overseer Wilbur Glen Voliva, successor to Dowle, stood by a barrel in Shiloh tabernacle and watched his disciples toss $27,000 into it as a "sacrifice offering." Voliva kissed and consecrated the infants in forty-eight minutes.

A STRAWBERRY INQUIRY.

A lady reader of these notes living at Rochelle, Ill., writes asking what is the best time to set out a strawberry bed; also if she can renovate an old bed so that it will be worth while. In the section in which our correspondent lives we believe a new bed would give best results if the plants were set out the latter part of April, or about the time when potatoes are planted. To have the most satisfactory bed the plants should be large and thrifty, and the ground in which they are planted should be enriched with well rotted manure and made fine and mellow. If the variety of berry set is a vigorous grower the plants should be put in rows three feet apart and about two feet apart in the row. To have berries that are a delight, a dozen or eighteen of which will fill a quart measure, one should get pedigreed plants from some responsible grower. Such plants will cost a trifle more than the common, runty plants, but the returns at picking time will more than justify the additional expense. The bed should be kept thoroughly tilled during the growing season and free from weeds, and blossoms that develop should be snipped off. When the ground is firmly frozen after winter sets in the bed should be covered with a coat of about three inches of clean straw, which can be raked from the crown of the row at the proper time in the spring and allowed to furnish a covering for the earth between. In answer to the inquiry about the old bed we would say that we believe it can be renovated so that it will give good results. In doing this one should first cut all growth on the bed close with a scythe, including plants and weeds. If this dries sufficiently it should be burned on the bed with any other litter that may be lying close on the ground. Any rubbish that does not burn should be raked off.

One should next take a single horse plow or hand cultivator and break up and thoroughly stir the soil between the original berry rows, leaving unplowed strips of not more than six inches wide. If quite a bit of loosed soil is rattled in on this strip it will do no harm. The bed, what there is left of it, will look decidedly sick after this operation, but following a rain the plants will begin to show up from the undisturbed roots, and runners will develop, from which entirely new plants will set. The success of such renovation of an old bed will depend largely upon the amount of moisture it received during July and August, but an artificial supply will answer the same purpose. Such a bed will bear a good supply of berries next year, but not as large a quantity as would a bed in its second year. As a sort of compromise we would suggest that our friend renovate a half of this bed, unless it is very small, and on the other half set new plants next spring. This will insure some berries next season and a good supply the season following.

MILKING STRAIN SHORTHORNS.

Farmers who have made an effort to develop a milking strain of Shorthorns will be interested in some experiments which have been carried on by the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with the Minnesota experiment station along the line of developing a type of Shorthorns which will produce not only valuable beef animals, but cows which will give a good account of themselves in the dairy. Reports published relative to these experiments show that in three herds owned by private individuals an annual milk production of from 3,000 to 6,000 pounds was secured, yielding from 125 to 250 pounds of butter fat. In one herd owned and directly under the supervision of the experiment station the records show yields running from 4,000 to 8,000 pounds of milk, containing from 125 to 250 pounds of butter fat. Time was when there were in existence a number of herds of milking Shorthorns that possessed a decidedly dairy bent, but the big fat stock shows with standards of judging which put Shorthorns in the beef and not in the dairy classes and which call for mountains of fat on the back of all exhibition animals has played hob with the moderate dairy tendency a few Shorthorns possessed.

ADVANTAGE OF A DUST MULCH.

A friend who lives in Stanley county in the southwestern part of South Dakota, was telling us the other day of an interesting experiment that one of his neighbors made last year along the line of harrowing a field of wheat after it was up to conserve moisture. He divided an eighteen acre field into two equal tracts. One of these he did not touch after the grain showed above the ground. The other piece he harrowed three times, adjusting the lever so as to put the teeth at quite an angle. The last time through the wheat stood four teen inches high. At harvest time the plot that had not been dragged yielded nine bushels per acre. The other plot that had been given a dust mulch by dragging yielded eighteen bushels. This easy method of conserving moisture is an especially live problem with every farmer in the semiarid sections where the rainfall ranges from twelve to eighteen inches per annum, yet the principle is one that the farmer in the humid sections might well put into practice in dry seasons. There is little question that the benefit to be derived from such dragging and a breaking of the soil crust would be correspondingly great.

Rebuking an Emperor.
Once, so the story goes, Emperor Nicholas of Russia asked Liszt to play in his presence. The musician complied, but during the performance the czar started a conversation with an aide-de-camp. Liszt stopped playing at once. The czar asked what was the matter. "When the emperor speaks," said Liszt, "every one must be silent." The czar smilingly took the hint, and the playing proceeded.

SHERIFF'S SALE

A tract of land situated in Liberty Township, Adams County, Pa., about three miles south of Fountain Dale, containing 85 acres (more or less), about 30 acres of which being good timberland, adjoining lands of Jere Miller, Henry Treidler, improved with a two story frame house, bank barn, hog pen, chicken house and other outbuildings, a never failing spring of water, a young bearing apple orchard and a variety of other fruit.

Seized and taken into execution as the property of Charles P. Cline and Jennie A. Cline, and to be sold by me.

ELIAS FISSEL, Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, Gettysburg, Pa., July 10, 1911.

Elias Fissel, Sheriff.

It is estimated that a circular barn can be built at from 30 to 40 per cent less than the common rectangular barn of like capacity. More than this, the circular barn is stronger and can be more conveniently arranged on the interior. About the only drawback with the circular structure is that not one man in ten knows how to put one up nor relishes the job even if he does know how.

A York state miser had no faith in banks and so put $47,000 which he had hoarded during many years in what he thought a safe nook in his house. But the structure caught fire the other day, and the savings of many years went up in smoke. Notwithstanding the fact that instances like the above are of almost daily occurrence there are a whole lot of folks who still believe that an old trunk, a tin can or a stove is a better place of safety than a bank.

A question that naturally comes to the Ohio or Illinois farmer who goes to the southwest is whether listing as a method of planting corn is preferable to plowing and planting by the check row method. This matter has been given a pretty thorough test at several experiment stations in states where listing is practiced, and if there is any difference at all in the yield of corn secured by the two methods it is slightly in favor of the latter method.

There are a good many sections this year in which the only farmers who will harvest a crop of corn worth speaking of will be those who persist in frequent cultivation even after the time when the field is usually tilled by. If the drought persists the cultivation should be continued with single horse cultivators or, what gives just as satisfactory results, an old mower wheel hauled between the rows of corn just as it lies on the ground. This levels and pulverizes the soil and gives the desired dust mulch.

Didn't Have To.

"Did you hear the rain in the night?"

"Yes."

"Pleasant music, wasn't it?"

"I didn't notice the music. I was too busy hustling around closing the windows. Didn't it keep you busy too?"

"Oh, no! We rent a furnished house, you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Concession.

"How do you know she's older than you are?"

"Why, she admitted it herself."

"Honestly? What did she say?"

"She said, 'You and I are just the same age, dearie.'"—Toledo Blade.
